

Outlook/Review

The fourth quarter saw increased volatility in many markets, especially in December, leaving many asset classes and major indexes down for the year, including the S&P 500 and Dow Jones Industrial Index. In last quarter's commentary we stated that, "As the Federal Reserve continues to normalize short-term interest rates, we believe that the environment for value investing should improve. Higher rates may begin to impact at least two categories of companies: high growth and low quality, especially those with leverage." We believe that this prediction began to play out in the fourth quarter. Higher interest rates and a continued flattening of the yield curveⁱ coupled with quantitative tightening, have caused some of the more highly valued growth and concept stocks to decline, and has led to the largest decline in relative valuation of cyclicals vs. the S&P 500 multiple since at least 1980ⁱⁱ. In fact, few stocks and few asset classes were unscathed through December 20th, with 93% of global asset classes registering a negative total return (in USD terms)ⁱⁱⁱ. The good news is that valuations of many companies are beginning to appear quite attractive to us; for a value investor, the current environment is very exciting. We believe that after several challenging years for active managers, the environment has become more rewarding for active managers and especially for value investors. Anchor's investment process was designed to weather the sort of turbulence that we saw in the fourth quarter, and to take advantage of volatility, thus we remain optimistic about the year ahead.

Strategy Review & Positioning

Anchor's Small-Mid Cap Value strategy outperformed the Russell 2500 Value Index in the fourth quarter. The top three factors that contributed to outperformance were security selection in Producer Durables, and Financial Services, as well as an underweighting in Energy. The largest detractors to performance included an underweighting in Utilities and Financial Services, as well as an overweighting in Producer durables.

Esterline Technologies Corporation (ESL) was the largest contributor to performance in the fourth quarter, followed by Imperva, Inc. (IMPV), Nutrisystem, Inc. (NTRI), Willis Towers Watson Public Limited Company (WLTW), and Tech Data Corporation (TECD). The largest detractors included Cavco Industries, Inc. (CVCO), Conduent, Inc. (CNDT), NuVasive, Inc. (NUVA), Barnes Group Inc. (B), and SkyWest, Inc (SKYW).

Eight names were added to the portfolio during the fourth quarter, Carbonite, Inc. (CARB), National Storage Affiliates Trust (NSA), ICF International, Inc. (ICFI), NV5 Global Inc (NVEE), BWX Technologies, Inc. (BWX), Torchmark Corporation (TMK), Hexcel Corporation (HXL), and Construction Partners, Inc. Class A (ROAD). We exited six names during the quarter Imperva, Inc. (IMPV), Tech Data Corporation (TECD), Hain Celestial Group, Inc. (HAIN), Willis Towers Watson Public Limited Company (WLTW), Hub Group, Inc. Class A (HUBG), and Invesco Ltd. (IVZ).

In the fourth quarter, we witnessed a significant turn in the market from the beginning of the year, and this resulted in the worse returning year for smaller cap companies since 2008.^{iv} However, the market pullback and volatility during the quarter allowed us to purchase a number of companies, which we had been monitoring for more attractive entry points. Additionally, we were pleased to see three take-outs of portfolio companies during the quarter: Esterline Technologies, Imperva, Inc., and Nutrisystem, Inc.

Following strong earnings growth in 2018, we are closely monitoring signs for earnings weakness going forward. We expect volatility to continue and are prepared to invest in new companies or add to current holdings should the opportunity arise. As usual, high credit quality, self-funding, sustainable business models, and valuation remain of utmost importance.
